Premier warns Israel Civil defense alert planned in Syria

DAMASCUS, May 30 (Agencies) — Syria has announced it will hold a civil defense exercise Sunday the first since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

A decree issued Saturday by Prime Minister Abdul Raouf Kasm's office instructed all civil defense personnel report to their posts when warning sirens sound. It called on everyone to abide by civil defense regulations, which require people to clear the streets and take refuge in shelters. All public transport must halt.

Kasm said Syria was capable of beating back any attack. "Syria faces challenges with counter-challenges, intervention with confrontation and threats with mobilization," he said at a celebration marking police forces' day.

"Syria is a united country and the Arabs stand together in fighting Israel. Syria is also backed by friendly countries and Socialist states headed by the Soviet Union, the prime minister added.

"Zionist threats, escalation of events in Lebanon and clouds gathering in the horizon because of military and political provocations are a maneuver which may precede aggression, Kasm said. "But we have never been so confident of our capability to beat back and crush such an aggression as we are now."

Fears of a confrontation between Israel and Syria grew after Israel shot down two Syrian helicopters in Lebanon last month. Syria responded by installing anti-aircraft missiles in the area. Kasm described the missile crisis as artificial and said it had been created after Syria embarked on moves to bring about national reconciliation in Lebanon. Israel aimed to undermine these efforts, he added.

State-run Damascus radio Saturday continued to attack the United States, describing its policy as anti-Arab and hostile to peace in the region. "America is actually pushing the situation to the brink of war while pretending

Netherlands heading for coalition

THE HAGUE, May 30 (R) — Queen Beatrix is due to announce today the names of one or more intermediaries to work out a formula for a coalition government to run the country in the wake of last Tuesday's general election.

Faced with urgent economic and social problems, the four main parties have broadly agreed on the appointment of up to two "informateurs" to avoid a crisis. Christian Democratic leader and caretaker Prime Minister Dries Van Agt proposed the appointment of two intermediaries from his party after this week's election left his coalition two short of a parliamentary majority.

The short of a parliamentary majority. The queen was receiving leaders of six splinter parties and after consulting her advisers could announce her decision on an "informateur" later Saturday a government spokesman said. But political commentators said policy differences could still present major obstacles to the formation of a government despite the apparent easing of the first stage of the process.

Van Agt may need the support of the anti-nuclear Labor Party and other critics of the missile program to get a workable parliamentary majority. This is likely to delay a promised decision by the end of this year on the missiles. Western diplomats believe the bargaining necessary to form a new coalition will make it hard for whatever government emerges to accept the warheads.

Dutch refusal to take part in the program could cause serious problems for the United States and other Western allies. Two of the other major parties, the Labor Party and the Democrat '66 Front, have called for a Labor-Democrat-Christian Democrat Coalition.

Van Agt told reporters the Christian Democrats had spoken against a four-party cabinet, and did not want to shore up their old coalition with the Liberals by relying on the support of minority right-wing splinter parties.

Bangladesh's Zia slain; rebels heading for Dacca

NEW DELHI, May 30 (Agencies) — Rebel forces in Bangladesh were reported to be advancing toward the capital of Dacca following the assassination of President Ziaur Rahman Saturday, the Press Trust of India news agency reported.

A "mutiny" against the central government which began within two army divisions at Chittagong under the command of Maj. Gen. Manzur Ahmed has spread to several army barracks at Dacca, Jessore, Bagura and Rajshahi, the news agency added. It said that the army group, which has remained loyal to the Dacca government, had established defensive positions at two points in southern Bangladesh to check the progress of the rebels in the direction of the capital.

Sporadic clashes between the rebels and armed police personnel were still underway in Chittagong, where the president was killed early Saturday together with some of his aides and bodyguards. Reports said that the rebels used automatic weapons and rocket launchers in that attack.

A colonel and several security guards were either killed or overpowered by the rebel army men, who forced their entry into the rest house where the Bangladesh president was staying, the reports said. The rebels, meanwhile, have reportedly taken control of Chittagong airport, the city's sea port, its radio station and communications network as well as of the Chittagong-to-Dacca national highway.

According to travellers who arrived at Calcutta airport Saturday night from Dacca, the atmosphere was tense there, the airport looked deserted and all domestic flights had been suspended.

The assassination came about two weeks after the daughter of the founder of Bangladesh — the late Sheikh Mujibur Rahman — returned to that country to head the main opposition political party. Hasina Sheikh Wazed, 33, left New Delhi on May 17 for her homeland after nearly six years in India in self-exile. She recently was elected president in absence of the Awami League, which under her father's leadership launched the 1971 war.

Sheikh Mujibur, his wife and three sons were assassinated in 1975 by a group of young army officers that Zia is accused of protecting. No immediate connection was established, however, between Mrs. Wazed's return and the assassination of Zia.

The official government radio in Dacca blamed the assassination on "a group of miscreants" led by Manzur in an apparent coup attempt. Bangladesh Army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. M. Arshad asked Manzur to "surrender immediately" to the government, the radio said in a broadcast monitored in Calcutta.

Arshad said a "so-called revolutionary council" headed by Manzur had taken control of the Chittagong radio station, but maintained that other members of the country's armed forces were loyal to the government. He called on all members of the army not to be provoked by insinuations and to discharge their duties faithfully.

Vice President Abdus Sattar took control of the government in Dacca and proclaimed an "internal emergency" which he said was necessary "as the security of Republic of Bangladesh has been shaken by internal disturbances." As acting president, Sattar also suspended all civil rights under 12 articles of the constitution, forbade people to seek redress through the courts and banned all meetings and public gatherings.

A curfew was declared in Dacca, and some reports said it had been extended to all major cities in Bangladesh. Army troops were reported in the streets of the capital, but there was no indication of any violence.

An Indian government spokesman here said that information received in New Delhi indicated that Zia was shot at about 4:30 a.m. local time (2:30 GMT Friday) in the Circuit House (government guest house) at Chittagong.

The spokesman said reports from Bangladesh indicated that "a certain group of people are in control of the Chittagong area who seem to be defying the constitutional authorities in Dacca." Radio Chittagong announced Saturday morning "that a new revolutionary council has assumed change of the government of Bangladesh...this was followed shortly by a radio Dacca announcement of Zia's death and asking people not to listen to other broadcasts but to listen to only the Dacca Station," the spokesman said.

The Radio Chittagong rebel broadcast reportedly also said that the 1972 treaty of friendship between India and Bangladesh "stands abrogated." The government in Dacca, meanwhile, announced that all international agreements remain in force. The spokesman was asked about a Calcutta newspaper report that Bangladeshis in India had plotted against Zia. He replied, "there is no question of any person in India being allowed to undertake political activity against the government of an neighboring friendly country...any allegation or insinuation about Indian involvement in the tragic events in Bangladesh is totally baseless."

Meanwhile, Sattar announced a 40-day period of mourning. There was no immediate word on the wife and two sons of Zia. There also was no announcement as to the disposition of his body, leading to speculation that it still was in Chittagong and that the city of about one million population, located about 200 kilometers southeast of Dacca, was indeed under rebel control.

Direct communication with Bangladesh was severed shortly after Zia's death was announced. Dacca international airport was closed, although one scheduled flight by the national carrier, Biman, was permitted to depart for Calcutta after a two-hour delay.

In the meantime foreign governments expressed shock at the assassination of Zia. Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said President Zia had statesmanlike vision and she condemned what she called the politics of murder.

A Pakistan foreign ministry spokesman said President Zia "brought great prestige to Bangladesh and his death is a bad thing. Pakistan is distressed."

Zia's career

President Ziaur Rahman, 45, whose death was announced Saturday, had governed Bangladesh, since November 1975.

He was brought to power by a group of young officers after a series of coups and counter-coups between August and November 1975, when he became deputy martial law administrator and in effect ruler. He became chief martial law administrator in November 1976, and five months later was sworn in as president after the resignation of then-President Muhammad Sayem.

Sayem had come to power in the coup in which the country's first president, Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, was killed. In 1977 Gen. Ziaur won a 98.88 percent approval for his rule in a national referendum and martial law was ended in April 1979.

Reputed to be cold, dedicated and honest, Gen. Ziaur, who was a career soldier, was one of the heroes of the independence war in March 1971 against Pakistan. Bangladesh until then was East Pakistan. He launched the first great military operation of the war at Chittagong, in the south east of what was then East Pakistan, where he was killed.

Peking's 1st peace gesture to Taiwan

PEKING, May 30 (Agencies) — Communist China made one of its most dramatic peace gestures to Taiwan since 1949 Saturday and invited the President of the Republic of China Chiang Ching-kuo and all Taiwan mourners to the funeral Wednesday in Peking of his famous aunt — Madame Sun Yat-sen.

China mourned Friday night Madame Sun, for more than 30 years a useful political symbol of non-Communist patriots cooperating with the party. Sun Yat-sen was the founder of modern China.

Hours after her death, China dispatched cables of condolences to the United States, Taiwan and Hong Kong. A cable also was sent to the widow of nationalists' first president Chiang Kai-shek, an avowed enemy of the Communists. His widow is Madame Sun's younger sister who lives on Long Island, New York.

Telegrams also were sent to Taiwan — China regards it as a province — to Chiang's other son, Chiang Wei-kuo, commander-in-chief of the Combined Services Force. At least two other relatives received cables. The official Chinese News Agency Xinhua Saturday reported the unprecedented but one-way communication.

A spokesman for Chiang Wei-kuo said he would not attend his aunt's state funeral and said he would never fall into the Communist "trap."

Madame Sun broke with her wealth and powerful family which denounced communism and fled to Taiwan and the United States after the 1949 Communist victory. China announced that special flights of Taiwan's China Airlines may land at Peking or Shanghai airports — and that all costs would be paid by the People's Republic of China. The gesture toward the 17 million Chinese of the Republic of China was issued by the 392-person funeral committee for Madame Sun

Yat-sen — Soong Ching-ling — who died Friday night of leukemia at the age of 90.

Mourning ceremonies will be held from Sunday through Tuesday at Peking's Great Hall of the People in the Central Square of Heavenly Peace. A memorial service will be held Wednesday. Madame Sun will be buried in the Soong family graveyard in Shanghai Thursday.

Soong Ching ling died Friday here at the age of 90. Taiwan's President Chiang Ching-kuo is the son of Chiang Kai-shek, Mrs. Soong's brother-in-law.

Although no name was explicitly mentioned in the statement released by NCNA, the invitation is clearly addressed to both President Chiang Ching-kuo and to Soong Ching-ling's sister, Meiling, the 83-year-old widow of Chiang Kai-shek who is currently being treated in New York for skin cancer.

The round tower with a diameter of 35 meters will be 66 meters high and have a capacity of 8,000 cubic meters. It has been designed to have a circular balcony from where a visitor can see the town, and a reception hall 45.5 meters high in which official functions would be held. The project is expected to be completed in 18 months.

COMMENT

By Abdul Raouf Al Bilad

Many drivers often cross the zebra line which is specifically marked yellow for the pedestrian crossing at road signals. There are some people who oppose this 'check' before the signal, but I am all in favor of it. If we don't give pedestrians the freedom of movement before the signal, what else are we supposed to do for them. Naturally, we can't install any signal in the midst of the road itself.

In my view, the drivers ought to appreciate the situation by allowing the pedestrians to use this facility on the road crossing. We must not cross the pedestrian line and try to remind ourselves that it has not been painted to beautify the road, but to facilitate the safe movement of the pedestrians.

There is every possibility that there are some among the pedestrians who are unable to zig-zag between the cars especially when the green signal is anxiously awaited to open. There may be some women, children or even handicapped persons trying to cross the road. It is our duty to take care of them all by being cautious on the zebra line.

Car drivers ought to keep these matters in mind and should remain prepared for strict action against them in case they violate the traffic rules. I don't think the offending drivers should receive any leniency or laxity by the traffic officials.

Pakistan Ulema visit

JEDDAH, May 30 — An eight-member delegation of Pakistan Ulema arrived in the Kingdom for a short visit. The delegation is led by Allama Ihsan Elahi Zehner, and is scheduled to visit Jeddah, Makkah, Madina and Riyadh, the Pakistan Embassy reported Saturday.

The group will hold meetings with religious scholars and officials of the Ministry of Pilgrimage and Endowments and the World Muslim League to exchange views on the promotion of Islamic solidarity and unity.

Agribank reveals SR177m budget

HASA, May 30 (SPA) — The Agricultural Bank's Hasa branch budget for the 1981-82 budget amounted to SR177 million, according to officials Saturday. The Hasa branch also covers the bank's Hofuf, Qatif and Hafrel Batin offices.

Ahmad Ibrahim Al-Hussain, Hasa branch director, said that SR18 million has been allocated for the Hofuf office, SR17 million for the Qatif office and SR3 million for Hafrel Batin as assistance to local farmers to help purchase agricultural machinery, fodder and other requirements.

Hussain said the bank has approved loan for several agricultural and animal production projects, including an SR13 million loan granted to a sheep fattening project at SR950,000 for a poultry farm in Qatif.

The Hasa branch granted 1,556 loans totaling SR168.6 million last year, Hussain said. Assistance to farmers during the same period amounted to SR39 million, he added.

JEDDAH, May 30 — A bull and matador dueling in a correo was missing, but all other ingredients were provided for a 10-day Spanish Golden Fiesta, which opened at the Hyatt Regency Saturday evening.

The fiesta, sponsored and organized by the Spanish Trade Center with the assistance of the Spanish Embassy, aims to promote better trade relations between Spain and the Kingdom, according to Louis Cesueotes, the center's manager.

Consumer agency finds fake soap

JEDDAH, May 30 — The Consumer Protection Department of the Commerce Ministry seized a totally faked toilet soap that imitated a high quality French brand, according to officials.

Saleh Rasheed Al-Uwaini, consumer protection department director general, told Al-Jazirah Saturday that investigation revealed the soap to have been imported from the free market of Aqaba, Jordan, and was manufactured in the Republic of China. Upon analyzing the product at the quality control Laboratory in Riyadh, it was found to be of totally different quality than the original French brand.

The event features sounds of enchanting melodies created by the Flamenco and La Tuna musical ensembles, an exhibition of paintings by 10 acclaimed Spanish artists, a handicrafts display and a video film featuring tourist resorts.

A special public concert has been planned for Wednesday June 3, by the Hyatt's pool-side.

Cesueotes is grateful to Saudia for its cooperation in transporting all the paraphanelia from Spain required for the fair.

According to Spanish officials here, trade promotion is only one aspect of the fiesta. Another long term goal is to attract Saudi Ambians to invest in real estate in the Spanish resorts. Jose Ruiz Gutierrez, a real estate expert, is on hand at the Fiesta to answer potential investors' queries.

Gutierrez already has been approached by interested parties. One of the prospective Saudi Arabian buyers said that links between Spain and the Kingdom are not new since Arabs left a mark on Spanish culture and habits, and that many Saudi Arabians feel at home in Spain.

The resort that is attracting most buyers is Marbella, which is located about 35 miles from Malaga, according to Gutierrez. Marbella has a year-round temperate climate, yacht harbors, fishing facilities and golf courses.

Sending personal messages

Mitterrand briefs special M.E. envoys

PARIS, May 30 (R) — President Francois Mitterrand has briefed special envoys he is sending to Middle Eastern countries with personal messages to Arab leaders explaining the new French government's policy and giving assurances of France's stand, Elysee officials said.

Senior diplomat Jacques Andreani will take a message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and will then go to Riyadh with a message to King Khaled, the officials said Friday. Mitterrand sent King Khaled a message last week, delivered by Gen. Jacques Mitterrand, the president's brother and head of France's Aerospatiale Aircraft and Missile Company.

Mitterrand is sending another senior diplomat, Serge Boidevaix, with messages to President Saddam Hussein of Iraq and King Hussein of Jordan, the officials said. The envoys will assure Arab leaders that France will honor its arms contracts and other obligations. They will also discuss the Middle East. French External Relations Minister Claude Cheysson has said France's positions on the Middle East "are exactly the same as those of the previous government."

In an interview with the newspaper Le Monde, Cheysson said France would respect all contracts including those for arms. His statement and a similar one by Finance Minister Jacques Delors earlier this week to The Washington Post appeared to indicate France would continue to deliver enriched uranium to Iraq for its French-supplied Osirak nuclear reactor.

Socialist leaders are widely reported to have made efforts over the past week to reassure Arab states and Arab overseas investors who have expressed concern at President Mitterrand's close ties with Israel.

3 European nations hail GCC

LONDON, May 30 (WAM) — Three European foreign ministers welcomed the establishment of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and expressed the hope that it will promote peace and stability in the Middle East and the Gulf.

The foreign ministers of Belgium, Netherlands and Austria in statements to (WAM) and the London-based Voice magazine, also extended their congratulations to the heads of state and government of the participating countries.

Christopher Van der Klaauw, minister of foreign affairs of Netherlands, in his statement said that he was pleased to learn that the foreign ministers of the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar, Bahrain and Oman had agreed February 4, 1981, to set up a council to give greater effective substance to the spirit of cooperation and consultation that has grown up among them.

The federal minister for foreign affairs of Austria, Dr. Willibald Ppahr, described the first summit meeting of the GCC in Abu Dhabi May 26, as a historic event for the desire of the Gulf states to intensify the cooperation in the domestic and international field and will thus also contribute to maintain peace and security in this region which is of vital importance not only for the population of this area but for the whole world.

Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs Charles Ferdinand Nothomb who spoke on the occasion of the formation of the GCC extended his congratulations to heads of state of six GCC member states and expressed his best wishes for the progress of this endeavor.

CONCEALED IN SHOES: Two Pakistani nationals showing Turkish narcotics police how they concealed nine k.g. of hashish found on them during a regular customs check. One k.g. of the drug was found in their shoe holes and the rest in specially-cut luggage linings. The two were arrested May 21.

Greece, U.S. will sign bases pact

ATHENS, May 30 (R) — Prime Minister George Rallis said Saturday that Greece and the United States were close to agreement on the future status and operation of American military bases in Greece. He told reporters that substantial progress has been made during the negotiations in Athens but there were still minor technical issues to be settled. "We are waiting for the final proposals from the other side. If these proposals are in agreement with existing Greek views and are submitted within a reasonable time limit, the agreement will be signed," the prime minister said.

The talks between foreign ministry officials and American diplomats opened Oct. 29 last year and are based on an agreement initiated in 1977 but never signed. Under the agreement, Greece would have received $700 million in U.S. aid over four years in return for the bases.

Greece meanwhile has asked for an increase in the amount and is seeking an American pledge that the balance of power between Greece and Turkey, rivals over territorial rights in the Aegean, is maintained.

Sudan rail staff goes on strike

KHARTOUM, May 30 (AP) — Sudan's 43,000 railway workers went on a five-day strike Saturday demanding higher pay and the rehiring of 34 colleagues dismissed a month ago. There were no immediate figures available of the losses expected as a result of the strike.

The 34 persons were dismissed in April at the height of a purge throughout government ministries and state-run institutions to rid the facilities of what President Jaaffar Numair termed "anti-government elements, the corrupt and the incompetent."

Dismissal letters to the persons involved said the decision was made "in the public interest," a workers' trade union official told AP.

Jordan, Russia want Mideast talks

AMMAN, May 30 (Agencies)—King Hussein wound up a three-day state visit to the Soviet Union Friday, flying to Amman from Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

During the visit, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev renewed his call for an international conference to deal with the Middle East crisis. Brezhnev woo Hussein's support but a renewed rejection from U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig in Washington.

In a summary of the communique issued after Hussein's visit, Tass said the Soviet Union and Jordan reiterated support for an international conference on the Middle East. Jordan had expressed support for the Soviet initiative in calling for such a conference and had appreciated Soviet assistance to "the just Arab cause," Tass said. It said Brezhnev had accepted an invitation to visit Jordan at an unspecified date.

Both sides had denounced the U.S.-sponsored Camp David agreements between Egypt and Israel as contradicting Arab interests and preventing "real peace" in the region, Tass said.

But the Tass summary suggested that differences had emerged over Middle East issues.

On Lebanon the communique said the two sides had condemned Israel's "unceasing aggression" against that country, which it was carrying out with support "from outside," and called for an immediate end to all aggressive actions.

On the Iran-Iraq war, Tass said the two sides had expressed concern over the continued armed conflict and agreed it should be settled peacefully through negotiations.

The wording suggested a difference of opinion on the issue in which the Soviet Union, while taking a publicly neutral line, has tilted slightly toward Iran, while Jordan supports Iraq.

The two sides had also said they were against the establishment of military bases or nuclear weapons in the Gulf region.

New attack reported on Ghazni

NEW DELHI, May 30 (AP) — A Soviet force backed by tanks, armored vehicles and artillery and air bombardment has launched a new attack against Afghan freedom fighters holding the provincial capital of Ghazni, a delayed report reaching here from Afghanistan said.

About 50 Soviet soldiers were killed and more than 20 tanks and a number of other vehicles were destroyed in the fighting, according to the report from a Kabul source who has been accurate in the past. The unconfirmed report did not give casualty figures for the fighters, but estimated they "were also very high."

It said the city of about 48,000 population, located some 138 kilometers southwest of Kabul, was under assault in what was described as the first large-scale Soviet offensive in the province in months. A large number of houses were reported damaged by the fighting.

A small number of Afghan soldiers and some paramilitary units of the ruling Communist Party were said to be fighting alongside the Soviets in the attack launched about a week ago. The fighting had slackened but was reported still continuing at mid-week.

Ghazni has long been a burr in the side of the Moscow-installed regime in Kabul since it has been used by fighters as a staging area for supplies, the report said.

Writing memoirs

Carter having a busy time

By William J. Eaton

WASHINGTON, (LAT) — "It has been a busy time," wrote former President Jimmy Carter in a folksy letter from Plains, Ga. "I put down a nice pine floor in our attic..."

The man who lost the White House to Ronald Reagan in a landslide last November has given a cheerful account of his doings since he left 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. and resumed living in his hometown of 683 residents.

Carter's letter, a short, spring edition of the chatty Christmas letters written by millions of Americans, was sent last week to about 500 persons who held government posts in the Carter Administration. A copy was obtained by the Los Angeles Times.

"I have nothing but good feelings about our four years in the White House — a rare and gratifying experience — but I have really not missed Washington one minute," Carter began.

"The predictions from so many sources that we would have trouble with 'decompression' or frustration simply have not materialized," Carter described renovations in his Plains home, including the new attic floor and enclosure of the garage to serve as his workshop, as well as the planting of shrubbery and paving of the driveway.

Carter also reported on the activities of the former First Lady, Rosalynn, their son Chip, and daughter, Amy. "Chip is taking care of our farms and our business affairs," the former president wrote of his namesake, James Earl Carter III.

"Rosalynn has almost gotten our home livable and will soon begin her own book, and Amy is going to a very good school about 20 minutes away." The former president devoted a long paragraph to the preparation of his memoirs under a contract with Bantam Books, referring to personal diary entries he dictated while president.

"This is the first time I have reread any of them, and they are better than I expected," Carter said. "It is too early to know for certain, but I believe that the writing may prove to be enjoyable for me rather than an unpleasant chore."

Carter said he gets up before dawn and writes until daybreak at an electronic word-processing machine, then runs two or three miles and works on the book again later in the day. "I hope to spend about 20 hours a week at the typewriter and to finish the book in 12 months or so, for a change, I do not feel under any pressure," he said.

A few of Carter's aides said that they believed that the letter, which asked for their home addresses and telephone numbers, might be a political "testing of the waters" by the ex-president with a possible eye on the election.

But Jody Powell, Carter's White House press secretary and a political confidant for many years, said the letter was not a signal that the ex-president wants to get back into Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter politics. Stuart E. Eizenstat, former chief domestic adviser in the Carter White House, said that Carter had no desire to seek elective office again.

Lasers can help nab criminals

By a Science Correspondent
LONDON — Now space-age lasers are being used to nab criminals — red handed! Research at the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in Washington, D.C., have put the laser beam to the task of finding fingerprints. They have discovered that the lasers can detect fingerprints on plastic surfaces where conventional chemical powders are unable to function when static electricity builds up.

The blue-green light of the laser works by spotlighting riboflavin, a vitamin B enzyme excreted in the perspiration of body oil from everyone's hands.

The variety of items that can be checked for fingerprints have increased dramatically with the greater use of plastics in today's world. Now things like the plastic stocks of sawed-off shotguns and plastic electrician's tape can be checked as well as plastic cups, bags, fibers, seat cushions and covers, interior decorating materials and furnishings.

The evidence is compelling: During a trial year, the laser found 215 sets of fingerprints at the scenes of crimes that went undiscovered by traditional powder methods. And 45 produced positive identification of the persons who'd left the prints behind.

In South Africa

The growing power of black labor

JOHANNESBURG, (ONS) — There are few things that people agree about in South Africa but one of them is the growing power of black labor. And now the phenomenon is touching the citadel of the white household where "madam" and "master" have ruled supreme.

Three months ago, the South African Domestic Workers Association (SADWA) was formed with branches in Johannesburg and Durban. The association's first national convention will be held in the Orange Free State in October. SADWA is not yet a trade union but its organizers say the association will eventually become one. Its aim is to mobilize South Africa's one million unrepresented domestic servants.

Not to have a servant in white South Africa is as rare as having one in Europe or the United States. They are as much a part of the whites' life-style as refrigerators or cars, as well as their employers' principal source of information on black views, culture and failings. If you are a white living in South Africa and do not have a servant you are regarded as at best eccentric, at worst subversive.

Domestic servants have traditionally been an exploited class, lacking legal protection and the ability to engage in collective bargaining. But in South Africa the lot of the "below stairs" worker is made particularly arduous by the apartheid system.

Efforts to give this huge underclass a better deal began a decade ago when the Institute of Race Relations here launched a project to encourage servants and more enlightened employers to meet at weekly "centers of concern."

"It began as a social event for the maids Thursdays, their traditional day off," said Mrs. Leah Tutu, one of the government's most outspoken black critics. "Most of them had nowhere to go. We began teaching skills — sewing, cooking, literacy — but it rapidly became clear how exploited they were. Not only were they overworked and poorly paid but because of the influx control they were separated from their families."

The project mushroomed and workers themselves began to take a more active part in organizing activities, which included laying out guide-lines for employers on minimum wages, annual leave, living conditions, pensions and bonuses. A newsletter was established and stories of good and bad employers poured in.

One woman said she was taken on for general housework. She was never told that she was going to be a nanny two dogs. Another wrote: "So often a day off means that you finish work after lunch." (A common complaint, it appears.) "By then you are so tired all you can do is rest and do some shopping. There's hardly time to go and visit your children."

Another maid reported: "I received a telegram telling me of the death of my child and asked permission to go home. My employer said: 'If you go, will you wake up that child?'"

There is no statutory minimum wage for servants in South Africa but a test case fought by the Legal Resources Center, a public interest group, established that under common law domestics have to be given a month's notice, or a month's salary instead, if their employers decided to sack them. The government took notice and now advises employers to follow the ruling.

France preparing for parliament poll

PARIS, May 30 (AFP) — Three weeks after Socialist Francois Mitterrand's presidential election victory, France is preparing for a snap parliamentary election which will decide whether he can win enough parliamentary support to govern effectively from the left.

Elected with 51.6 percent of the vote on May 10, Mitterrand lost no time yielding presidential prerogative to dissolve parliament, as he had pledged, and the two-round parliamentary election will take place on June 14 and 21. Mitterrand is now counting on the momentum of his own presidential victory to break the hold a conservative majority has had in parliament for the past 25 years.

The outgoing chamber was largely dominated by the 155 deputies of the neo-Gaullist RPR (Rassemblement Pour la Republique) and 119 members of former President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's right-of-center UDF (Union Pour la Democratie Francaise). These two parties, which between them had a majority of some 40 seats, have now joined forces and entered the fray under the joint label of UNM — Union Pour Une Nouvelle Mairie (Union for a New Majority).

This hasty amalgamation, briskly promoted by neo-Gaullist leader Jacques Chirac — a former prime minister who fell out with Giscard d'Estaing and quit his post — is a measure of the fear of defeat and chilling prospect of five years in parliamentary opposition. Nevertheless, if the UNM were to win the election — even narrowly — Mitterrand would be virtually prevented from putting through his sweeping program of Socialist reform.

According to the latest opinion polls, however, the left appears poised to wrest the parliamentary majority from the right, with a score comparable to Mitterrand's own at the presidential election. But Mitterrand's presidential victory was mainly due to disaffected Gaullist and moderate votes — anti-Giscard votes rather than pro-Mitterrand votes. Many of these votes could now revert to conservative candidates at the general election. Socialist representation in the outgoing parliament amounted to 117 seats. If the forthcoming election follows the trend set at the presidential election, the Socialist Party can expect again to take a sizable slice of the vote from the Communist party, which has 86 seats in the chamber. In the first round of the presidential election, Communist Party leader and candidate Georges Marchais scored a disappointing 15.4 percent of the vote — the lowest Communist Party score in any election.

Meanwhile, Overseas Development Minister Jean-Pierre Cot, in his first interview since taking office May 22, told a provincial newspaper serving his parliamentary district that the new government's "great priority" was to build a "foreign policy that is coherent, dynamic and that takes into account the growing importance of the Third World."

Cot's ministry has in the past handled mainly French relations with its former colonies and with some former Portuguese colonies in Africa. There are indications that under Mitterrand, the ministry may be more generally concerned with Third World questions, under the overall guidance of External Relations (Foreign) Minister Claude Cheysson, an advocate of development.

In his interview with the newspaper Le Dauphine Libere of Grenoble, Cot said his job would be "to pursue, with new perspectives, the privileged relations between France and its African friends". He said the new name of his ministry, cooperation and development (it was cooperation previously) showed determination to break some old French habits.

Paris forbids phone tapping

PARIS, May 30 (AFP) — French Interior Minister Gaston Defferre has decided "to forbid all telephone tapping under the severest penalties."

In a communique issued here Friday, the Socialist minister said that he was prohibiting all departments under the control of the interior ministry "to practice tapping or any other technical means of listening to conversations of a private, political, journalistic or other character."

The only exceptions to the ban, Defferre said in his communique, concern actions by the French police "in cases involving the interior or external security of the state." Or in the battle against organized crime.

Defferre said that in both cases it might be necessary for reasons of efficiency to use tapping or similar means before the opening of a judicial inquiry.

He had therefore asked the prime minister to set up a mixed committee to authorize tapping in such cases. The committee would consist of deputies, lawyers, judges and police authorities and would draw up rules covering tapping. The committee would also be charged with curbing all abuses of the ban on listening in on other types of conversations.

BRIEFS

VATICAN CITY, (AFP) — Pope John Paul II will not be able to leave his hospital and return to the Vatican for another week, a Gemelli hospital spokesman said Friday. The Pope, recovering at the hospital since he was shot at St. Peter's Square on May 13, "is still in a post-operative period," the spokesman said.

BUENOS AIRES (R) — Nobel Peace Prize winner Adolfo Perez Esquivel says he has been threatened with death if he stays in Argentina. Esquivel, 48, who was awarded the 1980 Peace Prize for his human rights campaigning, told newsmen Friday the threats also involved his wife and children.

KOS, Greece, (AP) — Bulgarian leader Todor Zhivkov left this eastern Aegean island Saturday after a four-day official visit to Greece and talks with president Constantine Caramanlis. Zhivkov spent the first two days of his visit on the resort island of Rhodes where he had two rounds of talks with Caramanlis, then came here Friday to conclude the visit with sightseeing and less formal contacts with Caramanlis.

NAIROBI (R) — Indian President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy arrived in Nairobi Saturday for a four-day state visit, the first to Kenya by an Indian head of state. Reddy, who was met at the airport by Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi, is returning a visit

MANILA, (AFP) — Sri Lanka's application for membership to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) will be evaluated first by ASEAN senior officials before submitting it for consideration to the association's foreign ministers in their annual meeting here on June 7, Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos Romu said Saturday. Romulo said the ASEAN senior officials were scheduled to meet here on June 13 to finalize the agenda to be covered in the two-day 14th ASEAN ministerial conference.

BANGKOK, (AFP) — A planned repatriation of Cambodians from Thailand will be conducted on a voluntary basis, after close consultation with the U.N. Repatriation talks between the Thai National Security Council and the UNHCR concern some 130,000 displaced Cambodians in holding centers in eastern Thailand, not accorded refugee status.

CIA undergoes overhaul under Casey

$ 10b sought

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AFP) — On instructions from President Ronald Reagan the languishing Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), chief counterintelligence body in the United States, is undergoing a thorough overhaul.

The president's advisers judge that the agency's self-confidence, not to say its performance and efficiency, never altogether recovered from the Watergate scandal and the aftermath of the Vietnam war, when a number of its highly questionable operations came under unwelcome public scrutiny.

CIA moral was at its lowest ebb under Adm. Stansfield Turner, who ran the agency during the previous Carter administration. According to informed estimates, nearly 2,800 of its operatives retired during the last four years of the Carter administration — in many cases before retirement age.

The man who has moved into the managerial chair at CIA headquarters is 68-year-old William Casey, a personal friend of the president.

A seasoned business attorney of more than 30 years' standing, Casey is no stranger to intelligence work. In World War II he was involved in infiltrating allied agents into Germany and occupied France for the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), which in 1947 became the CIA.

Speaking of the new CIA director, an informed civil service source here said:

Brady recovering here

WASHINGTON, (R) — White House Press Secretary James Brady is responding satisfactorily to treatment for pneumonia which developed after he was shot during the assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan on March 30. A medical bulletin issued Friday said Brady's temperature was little higher than normal.

"There has been a rebuilding of morale. Casey has been projecting a father image. He has the right touch."

The agency has 1,700 analysts on its payroll, each highly specialized in a specific foreign field.

Linguists also have been in short supply. The flow of recruits dried up toward the close of the Vietnam war when anti-CIA feeling ran high in American universities.

Casey is known to be a stout advocate of cloak-and-dagger operations, and it can be expected that he will seek to revitalize this once-flourishing sector of CIA endeavor. He has asked Congress to make an overall budget of some $10,000 million to enable the dozen or so bodies involved in U.S. intelligence to be overhauled — an increase of at least seven percent over last year's budget.

Informed sources here made it clear, however, that the new-fashioned CIA would not be returning to the kind of no-holds-barred, noose-and-sack operation that it resorted to at the height of the Cold War.

There will be no more intercepting citizens' mail, nor schemes for physically liquidating foreign leaders, the sources indicated. As a precaution against future CIA excesses, at least eight congressmen from the two main parties will have to be made privy to all ultrasecret operations approved by the president, the sources said.

Hartman may be posted in Moscow

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP) — Ambassador to France Arthur Hartman may be moved to the top U.S. diplomatic post in Moscow, according to press reports based on comments from administration sources.

Last week informed sources said Arthur Hummel, currently U.S. ambassador to Pakistan, may be named ambassador to China. Hummel, who was born in China of American parents, was once assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs.

The sources said Ronald Spiers, director of the department's bureau of intelligence and research, will be named to replace Hummel in Islamabad.

Other nominations mentioned in press reports are:

George S. Vest, former assistant secretary of state for European affairs, as U.S. representative to the European Community in Brussels.

Harry G. Barnes, director-general of the foreign service, as ambassador to India. Michael A. Armacost, a deputy assistant secretary of state in the East Asian bureau as ambassador to Indonesia. Thomas R. Pickering, a State Department career officer, as ambassador to Nigeria.

Robert Strausz-Hupe, a veteran academician and diplomat, as ambassador to Turkey. Montague Stearns, former ambassador to the Ivory Coast, as ambassador to Greece. Richard L. Walker, an Asian specialist from the University of South Carolina, as ambassador to South Korea.

Michael H. Newlin, a department career officer, as ambassador to Algeria. Robert P. Paganelli, second-ranking U.S. diplomat in the embassy in Italy, as ambassador to Syrian. William J. Dyeaf, assistant secretary of state for public affairs, as ambassador to the Netherlands.

The reports said the administration has decided to leave the following in their present ambassadorial posts: Mike Mansfield in Japan, Samuel W. Lewis in Israel, Alfred L. Atherton, Jr. in Egypt, W. Tapley Bennett at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and Harry W. Shlaudemkal in Argentina.

Democrats frustrate deal on tax-cut plan

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AFP) — Congressional Democrats have regrouped after their widespread defections in the vote on President Ronald Reagan's budget program and blocked a compromise proposal on his tax-cut program.

The compromise, which apparently kept the main points of the Reagan plan, was not supported by Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee. The president had been encouraged by the passage of the fiscal year 1982 budget which was close to his original proposal, and had hoped that his extensive reform of U.S. tax laws would be approved without too many changes.

The tax program calls for cuts amounting to ten percent a year over three years, applied uniformly to all taxpayers. The Democrats have a plan for limiting the tax cuts to just one year. The bipartisan compromise was engineered by Robert Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Democratic Representative Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. The other

Oil output to cost Venezuela $1.28b

CARACAS, Venezuela, May 30 (AP) — A nine percent cut in oil production to go into effect on June 1 will reduce Venezuela's income by $1.28 billion through the end of the year, the government has said.

Venezuela will cut its production by 198,000 barrels per day, following a resolution by the ministerial meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, OPEC, early this week in Geneva.

ESCAP to fight marine pollution

BANGKOK, Thailand, May 30 (AP) — Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific plans to launch a four-year regional project to protect the marine environment in South East Asian countries, according to a first of a series of articles commissioned by ESCAP.

The project, to begin in August, calls for an assessment of the state of marine environment and the management of marine and coastal activities.

The report identified severe marine pollution in several Southeast Asian countries — the result, it said, of ignorance and negligence by coastal inhabitants and of heavy industries and industrialized urban areas.

According to the report, Thailand's fishing industry has declined because of the deterioration of aquatic resources. An important foreign exchange earner, Thailand's fishing industry peaked at 1.55 million tons in 1972. The total catch, especially from the inner zone of the Gulf of Thailand, since has declined because of overfishing and marine pollution.

In the Philippines, the report said, fishery resources have been degraded by the destruction of coral reefs, the building of fish traps and the construction of diked fishponds, fortifications and harbor works in Manila Bay.

In Malaysia, the maximum sustained fish yield of 400,000 tons a year from the Straits of Malacca is declining steadily. Authorities claim polluted matter is discharged by tankers and cargo ships. The largest single source of pollution is Singapore, according to the report, is pig raising. Compounding the threat to pollution is the presence of 13.7 million chickens and ducks on the island. The 940 industrial establishments also discharge about 30,000 cubic meters of effluent daily.

The report voiced concern over the rapid disappearance of mangrove forests in Indonesia which threatens fish and shrimp production since the tropical trees serve as spawning and nursing grounds for many marine species.

Encouraged by the new Democratic resistance, house speaker James O'Neill has reportedly even hopes to frustrate the president's goals in the budgetary realm.

While the budget approved by Congress would require reductions in social programs, O'Neill has made known his desire to re-insert some spending items during later stages of the budget debates. "These programs are worthy programs," O'Neill said. "I don't believe they should go down the drain. If that's busting the budget, I'm for busting the budget."

Further the Democrats are even more solidly opposed to the president's program to cut social security benefits. Commentators have said that the president has not used his persuasive powers on this issue, as he had before the budget vote. He previously wooed the votes of conservative Democrats in Congress.

The White House had announced without consulting Congress ahead of time that it proposed reducing payments to future retirees. It then provoked the wrath of those near retirement age as well as the anger of the Democrats, who view social security for the aged as one of their most important gains.

Racial slur costs Pan Am $125,000

MANILA, May 30 (R) — Pan American World Airways has been ordered by a Philippine court to pay over a million pesos ($125,000) to a Filipino businessman who lost his plane seat to a white man in what the judge called a racial slur.

Judge Serafin Camilon ordered the airline to pay bank executive Nestor Kalaw 600,000 pesos ($75,000) in moral damages and 400,000 pesos ($50,000) in fine, plus costs.

The court found that Pan Am had installed Kalaw in a first class seat in a San Francisco-Tokyo flight in August 1978. The airline's duty manager of passenger-terminal services at San Francisco airport later asked him to leave.

The manager said in written evidence that a group of Japanese tourists had arrived after Kalaw was on board and five of them had been upgraded to first class from economy.

But the court accepted evidence of the president of the Philippine National Bank, Panfilo Domingo, that the man who took Kalaw's seat next to him was a Caucasian.

FAO sees hike in grain output

ROME, May 30 (AFP) — The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) predicts substantial improvement in world production of meat and grains for 1981 as long as the weather stays reasonably good in the next few months.

But the Soviet Union and China will continue to buy large amounts of wheat and other grains, the most recent FAO bulletin said.

And in Africa, because of poor harvests and greater consumption, imports of rice will soar beyond the 2.5-million-ton mark for the first time.

Wheat harvests will rise from last year's 444 million tons to between 460 and 480 million tons. Secondary grain production will go up from 724 million tons to between 750 and 800 million tons.

The U.N. organization also forecast that wheat and grain trade will rise to as much as 200 million tons in 1981-82, in contrast to the 192 million tons estimated for 1980.

Because of increased imports from the Far East, rice trading should reach 12.8 million tons against last year's 11.5 million tons, the FAO said.

Plogoff echo

N-plan issue dominates French poll

PARIS, May 30 (AFP) — The ambitious French nuclear energy program has re-emerged as a hot electoral issue following Thursday's announcement by the new Socialist government that plans for building a controversial nuclear power station in Brittany had been "frozen."

With just over two weeks until the first round of parliamentary elections in which President Francois Mitterrand is attempting to muster a left majority to support his programs, the press Friday gave front page coverage to the decision to call off construction of the contested Plogoff facility.

Headlines ranged from the right-wing daily Aurore's "A low blow to France" to the independent left-wing Liberation's "We won," with the conservative evening paper France-Soir predicting "no more nuclear reactors" for France.

The Socialist-leaning morning paper Le Matin stressed that construction of the Plogoff reactor had simply been "frozen."

pending a thorough government debate before the national assembly on the energy policies proposed by Mitterrand during his presidential campaign.

The Communist Party newspaper L'Humanite, meanwhile, did not mention the decision. The party, which is attempting to work out a deal with the Socialists for the upcoming legislative elections favors continuing the nuclear energy program.

In fact, the Plogoff issue is far from being resolved. During his campaign, Mitterrand pledged to allow the completion of all plants under construction in France's nuclear program, but to cancel those not yet begun pending debate.

After Thursday's announcement by minister for the Sea Louis Le Pennek that Plogoff would be cancelled, Secretary of State for Energy Georges Lemoine hastened to clarify, saying that the site had merely been "frozen."

Reaction to the decision was heightened by the fact that over the past seven years, Plogoff has become a national symbol of the fight of local citizens against the maneuverings of a far away, impersonal administration in Paris.

In 1974, the national electricity company decided to study the possibility of building a 4x1,300 megawatt nuclear reactor at Plogoff, situated at the far western tip of Brittany, a major fishing and vacation center which each year accommodates some one million tourists.

Local residents, supported by fishermen and the tourist industry, vigorously demonstrated their opposition to the move.

The grassroots vs. central power issue highlighted in the Plogoff affair could explain why it was the first planned reactor "frozen" by the government. Other facilities still on the drawing board could also be called off, but they lack the political connotations of Plogoff.

Grain imports

Russia to cut dependence on U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 30 (R) — A month after the lifting of the U.S. embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, Moscow seems determined to reduce its dependence on the United States for grain imports, government and private trade experts say.

Without a grain agreement with the U.S., the Soviet Union is liable to treat the U.S. as a supplier of last resort in the future, John Hardt, an expert in Soviet economics, said in a recent report to a Congressional committee.

Soviet grain harvest this year at 215 million tons, a big improvement from the crop failures of the two previous years.

Baltimore Orioles consolidate position

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP) — Doug DeCinces' seventh home run in seven games and Rich Dauer's two doubles and three RBI propelled Baltimore to a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers Friday night, keeping the first-place Orioles' three games lead of Milwaukee in the American League east.

Dauer, who also walked and scored two runs, doubled one run home off Dan Schatzeder in the first inning with a two-run double off Dave Rozema in the fourth. DeCinces hit his solo shot off Rozema in the seventh inning.

Ted Simmons' two-run homer in the ninth inning off Reliever Tom Burgmeier vaulted Milwaukee to a 5-4 victory over Boston. The Brewers were held to three hits — including solo homers by Robin Young and Roy Howell for eight innings by Mike Torrez. But Burgmeier hit Cecil Cooper with a pitch before Simmons bit his seventh homer. The Red Sox had gone in front 4-3 in the eighth on Joe Rudi's two-run homer off Rollie Fingers.

Rookie Dave Righetti pitched eight innings of two-hit ball, Rich Gossage posted his 12th save and Rick Cerone drove in two runs as the New York Yankees beat Cleveland 5-2 and snapped a four-game losing streak.

In National League night action on the west coast, Glenn Hubbard's two-run homer carried Phil Atlanta to a 7-1 victory over San Diego, Jack Clark singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to boost San Francisco past Houston 3-1 and Pedro Guerrero's homer and two single and four RBI led

Los Angeles to a 5-2 triumph over Cincinnati.

Earlier in the N.L. George Hendrick's three hits, including his seventh homer, and four RBI powered St. Louis past Philadelphia 11-4 as the Cardinals halted a four-game losing streak.

Pitcher Scott Sanderson drew a bases-loaded walk and Tim Lincecum followed with an infield single as Montreal scored twice in the fourth inning and beat Pittsburgh 3-2. Mike Scott spaced nine hits and Dave Kingman hit a three-run homer to help the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 6-1.

Jan Timman triumphs in IBM Chess

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, May 30 (AP) — Dutch champion Jan Timman settled for a quick draw Friday to win the IBM Chess tournament with a half-point lead on world champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union.

Timman was pitted with white against Czechoslovakia's Valstimal Hort in Friday's eleventh round and agreed to declare their encounter a tie after a mere twelve moves, from a queen's gambit. The result brought his total to 7 1/2 points for an unbeaten tournament record of four victories and seven draws and netted him the event's first prize of 7,500 guilders ($ 3,000).

Karpov played black against U.S. grandmaster Lubosh Kavalek in a flank game, which resulted in a totally balanced position after the opening stage. Seeing no way to force a win, the world champion accepted Alek's offer of a draw at the 17th.

Karpov placed second and Hungary's Lajos Portisch, who overcame grandmaster Jan-Hein Donner in 37 moves with white from a king's Indian in the final round, was third.

Kavalek and Hort, the only competitor in the field of twelve to defeat the world champion, shared the fourth place in the final standings with Vassili Smyslov of the Soviet Union.

Dutch grandmaster Hans Ree ended seventh after a protracted battle with black from a Bog-Indian Defense against Lev Polugaevsky of the Soviet Union.

In the remaining game of the final round, Yugoslav grandmaster Ljubomir Ljubojevic got no further than a draw with white against Holland's Kick Langeweg, who built up an impenetrable position in 23 moves from a Sicilian Defense.

Final standings were: Timman, 7 1/2 points; Karpov and Portisch, 7; 4 Hort, Kavalek and Smyslov, 6 1/2; Ree, 6; Ljubojevic and Miles, 5; Polugaevsky, 4 1/2; Donner, 2 1/2; Langeweg, 2.

The Seattle Mariners' Lenny Randle disagrees that he blew a baseball foul against the Kansas City Royals last week, but that's the way the umpires wound up seeing it and the ruling went against Randle and the Mariners.

Everyone involved, including Mariner manager Rene Lachermano, smiled about the sixth-inning play though. "The umpires didn't know what to do," Lachermano said. "Lenny said he only yelled at the ball. The breath from his yelling must have moved it."

The comical play occurred when Kansas City's Amos Otis topped a ball toward third. Three Mariners, including third baseman Randle, converged on the ball but all realized it was too slow a roller to allow them to throw out Otis. All they could hope for was for it to roll foul. Randle got down on all fours and helped it go in that direction. Randle said he didn't do anything physical, just mental.

"I didn't blow it," insisted Randle. "I used the power of suggestion. I yelled at it, 'go foul, go foul.' " How could they call it a hit? it was a foul ball." After a protest by Royals manager Jim Frey, plate umpire Larry McCoy awarded Otis first base.

Strike put off
Major League baseball's threatened mid-season strike has been delayed for at least one week following an agreement reached by representatives of the players and the owners to extend a June 1 workout deadline in the collective bargaining agreement.

U.S. District Court Judge Henry Werker, who agreed to the extension, said he will listen next week in Rochester, N.Y. to a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) petition of an injunction. If it is granted, the injunction would put the entire free agency compensation issue on hold for one year.

The NLRB request petitions for an injunction which would rescind the controversial proposal unilaterally implemented by the owners last Feb. and allow management the option of adopting the clause next Feb. instead.

Marshall saves Hampshire

LONDON, May 30 (R) — West Indian Malcolm Marshall produced a fine all-round performance to help Hampshire force a draw against Leicestershire in the English County Cricket Championship Friday.

Test fast bowler Marshall had his best championship figures of six for 57 and then scored a defiant 33 when Hampshire slumped to 78 for eight after being set 248 to win.

Marshall's stubborn batting with tail-ender John Southern checked the Hampshire collapse and aided by an interruption due to rain, they salvaged a draw at 160 for nine. In an attempt to get a definite result in the rain-hit match, Hampshire forfeited their first innings after dismissing their opponents Friday for 224. Leicestershire made 23 without losing any wickets in the second innings before declaring.

Champions Middlesex forfeited their first innings and Nottinghamshire their second in another rain-ruined game. South African Clive Rice hit an unbeaten 117 for Nottinghamshire, who set a victory target of 259, but the match was drawn with Middlesex making 180 for six. Nottinghamshire lead the championship with 31 points from Middlesex, who have 29. Both have played four games.

At Swansea, rain returned Friday to further hamper the Australian cricket tourists. The final day of the tourists' three-day match against Glamorgan was called off after lunch as persistent rain swept in from the sea. The first day of the match also was a wash-out. Glamorgan was due to resume on 84 for four in reply to Australia's 147.

Summarized scores: At Darford, Kent 200-6 dec. and 191-6 dec. Yorkshire dec. and 112-5. Match drawn. At Bristol, Gloucestershire vs. Sussex. No play — rain. Match drawn. At Northampton, Northamptonshire 170-8 dec. Derbyshire 261-6. Match drawn.

An Evening to Remember

On Wednesday evening, the 27th of May, 1981, the Mayor of Jeddah, His Excellency Sheikh Mohammad Saeed Farsi inaugurated the new YILDIZLAR Restaurant in Jeddah. The ceremony was attended by over 300 prominent businessmen, government officials and the elite of the town. It was a memorable evening. In the finest traditions of Arabian hospitality.

YILDIZLAR spread over 2,500 sq. metres is an addition to the chain of the already famous restaurants in Beirut and London. It is unique in design, decor, comfort and efficiency. It consists of 4 halls. The main dining hall, a coffee shop, the lounge, and an exclusive family room.

H.E. Sheikh Mohammad Saeed Farsi cuts the tape to formally open the Restaurant.

You will be charmed by the distinctive Arab decor which also includes an indoor rock garden and waterfall. Intrigued by the culinary delights—Arabic and European. And impressed by the impeccable service.

YILDIZLAR is spacious enough to cater for 300 people at a time. It has a modern, efficient and meticulously clean kitchen. And the chefs are well worth their salt.

Coming back to Wednesday evening, the chief guest took a round of the restaurant and congratulated the owner Sheikh Abdullah El Amodi for his efforts in promoting Arab food, hospitality and tradition to the tourist industry. In a style that is typically Arabian.

Human no match for Borg

PA... May 30 (AFP) — Bjorn Borg took another step toward his sixth title here Saturday when he defeated Frenchman Paul Antoine Torre 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 in bright sunshine on the center-court at Roland Garros to reach the last 16 of the men's singles at the French Open Tennis Championships.

The 28-year-old Frenchman, who only turned to professional tennis last year after completing his engineering studies and who is ranked a lowly 226th in the world, was never able to find a solution to the nagging accuracy of Borg's length.

Another player eliminated Saturday was Ilie Nastase of Romania. The 34-year-old Nastase went down 3-6, 2-6, 1-6 to American Terry Moor who will be Borg's opponent in the next round.

After his victory, Borg, who celebrates his 25th birthday next Saturday, admitted that his match had been easier than he had expected. "I think he was much more nervous than he was when he played his first two matches."

"I am playing better with every game but I think I can still improve," said the defending champion, playing in his first tournament after a four weeks lay-off because of a shoulder injury. He said he had never played his next-round opponent American Terry Moor.

Earlier, on the same court Kathy Rinaldi, a 14-year-old American schoolgirl, stormed into the last 16 of the women's singles when she defeated eighth-seed Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-3, 7-5 in a dramatic, incident-packed match.

Rinaldi, who celebrated her 14th birthday in March, saved no fewer than six set points in a tempestuous second set which saw angry protests from both players, ugly crowd scenes and the replacement of a line judge.

The trouble started when Rinaldi, who comes from Stuart in Florida, was serving after fighting her way back to 3-3 from 1-3. A long, looping backhand from Fromholtz was called 'in' and the American player, who wears her fair hair in a pony-tail, angrily protested and was noisily supported by the crowd.

Her protests were over-ruled by French umpire Louis de Flers but the damage was done. She lost concentration and dropped her service.

In the next game there were more controversial calls and all in the Australian's favour. A furious Rinaldi banged her racket into the clay and gesture at the line-judge as the Australian left-hander moved into a 5-3 lead.

With Rinaldi serving, the ninth game of the set saw controversial baseline calls, two set points saved by the American, and an angry appeal, this time by Fromholtz, that the referee take steps to quieten the crowd. The spectators were by now booing every call the baseline judge made.

The umpire's appeal, which was barely audible, went unheeded and the American girl came back to 4-5.

In the tenth game Fromholtz held two more set points but again she was unable to finish off her opponent. Rinaldi produced a series of whipped backhand passing shots that left the Australian wrong-footed and after the American girl had levelled at 5-5 there was never any doubt about the final result.

Miruts Yifter

Miruts Yifter dropped from Ethiopian team

LONDON, May 30 (AP) — Double Olympic champion Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia has been left out of his nation's track team for the international meeting against England, Belgium and the United States at the Crystal Palace next Wednesday.

Yifter, 37, winner of gold medals over 5,000 and 10,000 meters at the Moscow Olympics, failed to produce his best form in the recent Ethiopian Armed Forces Championship.

Berhann Girma, Abynasam Gadesa and Tolossa Kotu will run in the 5,000 meters. Julian Goater and Geoff Smith will run for England at this distance.

Mohammed Kadir, who won a bronze medal behind Yifter in Moscow, runs in the 10,000 meters, while Eshetu Tura competes in the 3,000 meters steeplechase, the event in which he finished third in the Olympic Games.

Ferenc Paragi the Javelin world record-holder, returns to action, after recovering from injury, in a top class invitation event, along with Miklos Nemeth, another Hungarian who previously held the record. It was in this event, the Philips Night of Athletics, last year that Paragi set the U.K. allcomers record of 96.20 meters.

Kiwis brighten chances of winning group honors

AUCKLAND, May 30 (AFP) — New Zealand tightened its stranglehold on the World Football Cup Oceania Group here Saturday with a 2-0 victory over Taipei.

This was New Zealand's seventh qualifying game without a loss in the five-nation group and they have only to win their home fixture against Fiji, whom they defeated 4-0 away earlier this month, to be sure of winning the Group and going on to the Asia-Oceania elimination round.

Taipei was expected to play the same tight defensive match which enabled them to score a 0-0 draw with New Zealand when they first met earlier this month, but they surprised their hosts by going onto attack right from the start.

This unsettled the New Zealanders who didn't begin to make progress until the 15th minute when striker Steve Woodin used his powerful left foot to send the ball crashing from just outside the penalty area past the diving rival goalkeeper Chin Wang Liu and into the right-hand side of the net.

But New Zealand really showed some international class in the second half, when the experiment in moving Grant Turner from midfield into the striker's position paid off handsomely. Turner and the other specialist striker Duncan Cole frequently penetrated the rival defense and Turner was rewarded with a goal in the 35th minute. Standing midway between halfway and the penalty box, he headed a high ball toward the goal, chased after it and pushed it with his chest around two defenders before calmly sliding it with his left instep inside the left-hand upright to put New Zealand two goals up.

Taipei spent almost the whole of the second half of defense as New Zealand mounted attack. Goalkeeper Chin was probably the most impressive player, displaying a calmness which little indicated the pressure to which he was frequently subjected. They were unlucky not to score in the 34th minute of the second half, when New Zealand goalie Richard Wilson came almost right out of his penalty box in pursuit of the ball, then under the control of Jarn Jeng Yu.

Jarn needed only to side step Wilson and shoot for the goal, but he appeared to be unaware that he had a clear line to the upright and instead dribbled the ball away from the box, enabling Wilson to get back into position. New Zealand's last match will be against Fiji in Auckland in August.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has gone: South West North East 1♣ 2♣ Dble Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands? 1. ♠KQJ1087 ♥942 ♦A63 ♣5

1. Two spades. Perhaps you wouldn't have opened with only 10 high-card points...

2. Pass. Here it's best to stand for the double - even though you have unexpressed distributional values...

3. Two diamonds. This case is similar to the first one, in that you're short of the usual high-card values...

4. Three spades. Game seems almost certain and you should invite it by jumping to three spades...

5. Three clubs. Here there seems to be an excellent chance for a slam - though perhaps there's only a game - and it would be against the odds to accept the double...

Strikers to contest poll Scheduled parades banned in Irish city

BELFAST, May 30 (AP) — Rioters hurled stones and petrol bombs in Londonderry early Saturday and Britain's top minister in Northern Ireland slapped a ban on scheduled marches by Roman Catholics and Protestants.

British troops and local police fired plastic bullets to quell the disturbance in the predominantly Catholic area of Londonderry, the province's second largest city, a police spokesman said.

Japan ignores Midway arms

TOKYO, May 30 (AFP) — The Japanese government will not ask the United States to divulge whether the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway, due back in its home port of Yokosuka in Japan on June 5, is loaded with nuclear weapons or not, Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa said Saturday.

The ship's return has become a major issue here amid growing public suspicion the United States might have brought nuclear weapons into Japanese territory despite Japan's much-publicized policy of not possessing, producing or introducing nuclear weapons.

71 Iraqi troops killed

TEHRAN, May 30 (R) — Iranian forces have claimed that at least 71 Iraqi troops were killed in the Gulf war in 24 hours. Quoting a communique from the joint staff, the state radio said 50 Iraqis were killed around the beleaguered oil refining city of Abadan, in southern Khuzestan province, and 21 more died on the Dezful front 250 kms to the north.

Residential parts of Dezful, site of the biggest air base in the Middle East, were hit by Iraqi ground-to-ground missiles and Abadan was pounded by heavy artillery, it added.

MASONIC VILLA: A view of the villa of Licio Gelli, grand master of the "P-2" Masonic lodge, at Arezzo, 90 kms from Florence. The villa, used by Gelli to host VIP guests, was the nerve center of secret political and financial activity in Italy. The Masonic scandal, involving some members of the government, brought down Arnaldo Forlani's four-party coalition last week.

Facing up to Moscow Allies' pacifism upsets U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AFP) — A flurry of pacifism from Britain to Japan via the Gulf is seen here as threatening U.S. President Ronald Reagan's hopes of facing up to Moscow's might by beefing up the military strength of his Western allies.

Four months after he took office, the White House and State Department are showing increasing concern over a reluctance among most allies and friends to pledge full support to U.S. efforts to strengthen Western military potential.

American officials say this month's Socialist victory in France has made still more uncertain the degree of European determination to make the sacrifices needed to reduce Moscow's alleged strategic superiority. And some U.S. policy shapers also detect that opposition to the Soviet "threat" is dwindling in public opinion elsewhere in the Atlantic alliance.

They fear that a left-wing government with neutralist, anti-nuclear ideals could succeed the conservative leadership in Britain if Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher fails to extract her country from its economic plight.

At the same time Denmark, the Netherlands and Belgium are showing signs of political reticence, and appear to be subject to a religious-moral rejection of militarism, particularly of nuclear arms. American leaders, all too aware of the hostile reception given to their previous warnings against neutralism, publicly say nothing about their concern.

But privately Reagan's security adviser Richard Allen suspects that many Europeans would follow the maxim, "better red than dead." The recent summit of Gulf leaders in Abu Dhabi further spotlighted the limitations of U.S. strategy to build a military wall against Soviet penetration — strategy based largely on the use of regional military facilities by U.S. intervention forces.

The summit's final communique said the six Gulf countries alone were responsible for regional security, and refused to sanction superpower rivalries.

But Japan perhaps provides the biggest headache for U.S. strategists. They have tried for a long time to persuade Tokyo to play a more active role in the security of the Far East and Pacific, but an unfortunate chain of events has fueled public opposition in Japan to rearmament and nuclear arms.

Tensions between the two countries have now run so high that U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig has called off a planned visit to Japan during a Far East tour next month.

Observers believe the reluctance of U.S. allies to join without question in a new American military crusade against the Soviet Union should force the Reagan administration to begin serious talks with Moscow over limiting nuclear arms in the European theater.

Most of Washington's allies believe this first step toward resuming East-West strategic talks is vital to convince public opinion that the main aim of the alliance is to preserve peace and avoid a nuclear holocaust.

This week Haig acknowledged the problem by announcing that formal U.S.-Soviet negotiations on Euro-missiles would open soon after his meeting in New York this September with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Soviet paper attacks Polish union

MOSCOW, May 30 (R) — A Soviet newspaper said Saturday communism had paid dearly enough for past mistakes in Poland and it was now time for the party there to launch a political offensive against anti-socialist forces.

The remarks of the trade union newspaper Trud, in a report from Poland, were directed in general terms against the Solidarity free trade union. Trud correspondent Yuri Vasilkov said most Communists he had met in Poland had said only one thing: "It is time to go on to the offensive."

He went on: "There has been enough self-justification, enough granting of one position after another to the newly appeared 'defenders of the needs of workers,' to the adventurers who in the final analysis threaten the fate of not only Poland but of the whole world." A considerable price had already been paid for the mistakes and shortcomings of the past, he said, in an allusion to the political concessions that led to the birth of Solidarity.

He added: "more and more honest people clearly recognize that there is an irreconcilable class struggle going on in which it is not only necessary to maneuver but also carry on open, uncompromising battles."

The Trud article complemented a companion report from the same correspondent Friday which criticized the party leadership for allowing the formation of an independent labor movement last summer.

Taking up a theme developed Friday, Saturday's Trud article quoted a local party official as saying he was stunned when party criticism was leveled at official trade unions last year. At the same time, Saturday's report said branches of the official trade union now intended to unite their ranks in the near future and coordinate their activities.

Party asks Forlani to probe P2 scandal

ROME, May 30 (R) — Christian Democratic leaders Saturday pledged support for Prime Minister-designate Arnaldo Forlani, faced with the task of forming a new coalition government after a scandal over a secret Masonic lodge. Forlani consulted parliamentary leaders of his party about the strategy he will pursue when he begins delicate negotiations Monday aimed at putting together a new coalition.

The parliamentary leaders urged positive action to get to the roots of the "P2" scandal, which brought down Forlani's four-party coalition last week.

"The party leaders confirmed their full solidarity with Forlani for a strong, popular initiative which, together with the Socialist and lay Democratic parties, would allow major political and economic problems to be faced, and in particular hitting certain secret influences, terrorism and all forms of criminality," Deputy Gerardo Bianco said after the meeting.

Political analysts said Forlani will try to form a coalition similar to the last one, which linked his party with the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans, possibly enlarging it to include the Liberals. Liberal leader Valerio Zanone confirmed his willingness to join a new government at his party's congress Saturday.

"We have conditions to propose to the prime minister-designate and we are offering our collaboration. Our line is for a five-party coalition which would have a constructive relationship with the opposition," he said.

The Socialists, however, whose support is vital to any coalition not involving the opposition Communists, say they want a complete change of direction and will not be content with minor ministerial posts. If Forlani is unable to satisfy the Socialists, many of whom are keen to see their leader Bettino Craxi leading a new center-left coalition, Italy could face an early general election.

The Communists, who have called for a government of "alternative democracy," said they do not want an early election but would not be afraid of one.

Milan magistrates have discovered papers and another list of alleged "P-2" members in the house of fugitive grand master Licio Gelli who is wanted for espionage. A parliamentary commission is examining the documents, judicial sources said. More than 900 prominent Italians, many holding top government and military posts, were included in the first list of members.
